Attention all Élan NP01 customers:

The Front Anti Roll Bar was deleted in conjunction with a spring rate change. This was an effort to provide customers the better balanced vehicle with the ability to avoid splitter contact.

Over the course of the season it has come to light that the FARB is useful even with the increased spring rate. Elan has decided to include the FARB assembly to current and future orders.

Existing customers who did not receive the FARB will be contacted by a representative of Elan for shipment details. These parts are being made and will be sent out as soon as they are available for shipment.
